Topics Discussed:
- Selection of a team leader.
- Selection of a communication mean and platform.
- Everyone shared their strengths and weaknesses as far as programming languages go.
- Discussion on each one's preference of backend or frontend development, as well as of the database design part of the process.
- Proposals on the project topic.
- Proposals on technologies that will be used to develop a full-stack application.

Decisions:

- Dea Mulaj is selected as the team leader.
- Meetings will be scheduled beforehand using Google Meet. Meetings are said to be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, in order to track changes of development and brainstorm on possible bugs and fixes.
- It is decided that we will be developing a full-stack application for a Blog.
- During our next scheduled meeting we will decide on subgroups that will work on database, frontend or backend.

Objectives:

- Design and develop a full-stack application.
- Document the process of development by separating tasks, commenting code, as well as working with git using branches, features and bug-fixes.
- Achieving efficiency and originality by working in team and brainstorming together for new ideas or existing challenges.
- Creating an environment where we can lean on each other's help, as well as achieving knowledge transfer.
- Practice already known technologies, but also challenge ourselves to learn new languages and architecture models.
